SUNDAY APPEAL.

Fer the Sunday Appeal | MY FATHERLAND.

TRANSLATED FROM THE GERNAN OF KOHNER BY MARY E. POPE. Where is the minutel's fatherland? Where poble spirits radiance throw, Where garlands for the lovely blow. Where mighty hearts with rapture glow, For all that's sacred wield the brand,-

The e is my fallerland. How names the minstrel's fatherland " O'er her dent sons her heart is broke, She weeps beneath the strange sword's

Once she was called the land of oak, The free, free land, the German land, That is my fatherland. Why weeps the minstrei's fatherland?

Because a tyrant's stormy word, Her princes trembling all have heard, Nor sacred oates to break have feared, Nor neard my out her patriot band, That weeps my fatherland. Whom calls the minstrel's fath riand?

she calls upon the silent gods, In thunder tones that shake ner soil. Upon her free lom's scourging rods, On Retribution's vengeful hand, Their call my fatherland. What would the minstrel's fatherland ? The slave to chase from her free air, The war hound hunt back to his lair,

That would my fatherland. And hopes the minstral's fatherland? She hopes in right her cause to make, Hope; that her true sons will awake, Hopes God for her will vengeance take, And her avenger right has scanned, Thus hopes my fatherland.

And free, her own free sons to bear, Orfree, to bed them neath her sand,

SAINT MARY'S. For the Sunday Appeal Faund Wanting."

BY MARY E. POPE. Weighed in Toy by ance, dreadful God, What mortal soul that test can stand? A mice of doct that earth has trod, Fill up the scale framed by Tny hand! Guther each proper my it is have said, The sinin o earth is on them all; Heap in each cup each crust of bread Given in Tay name; how poor and small Search out my tile, and every word of gentleness, or ruth, or love,

Each generous thought on earth unbeard. But school in the realms above; And in Thy bound are morey cast. Forth from their midst the toint of sin. Tunt sollies all from first to last, And place them thy puresca e within, Would e'en a moun ain mass outweigh.

Out if Thou thus on souls sa, uld prove, Who, who, could ever dare to play? But, wonder never dreamed by man, Till from Thy Heaven the message came, One drop of that pure stream that ran From Jesus' side, not spilled in vain, Within that balance I may place, Where my good deeds so lightly weigh,

Savior, to Thee, weak, sinful all, Oh, let me ever out my eyes; And by Thy help still seek to rise, While here I stay with me ablds, And when within the balance bound, That precious drop from thy pier, ed side

And humbly, yet undaun od, face

The thunders of Thy indgment day.

BAINT MARY'S, July 17.

MOTTO OF THE MASS.

I've sean enough of life, although
Not yet beyond my prime;
With each of all sorts—nigh and low—
I've mingles in my fine.
When but a boy it came to pass
That, thrown upon the fown,
I found the met. of the mess
Was," Klok hun when he's down."
